Red Forces Closing In On Nanking

Plans Made for Swift Evacuation

Of Chiang's Capital

NANKING, Nov. 30.—(UPI)—Chinese Communists began a pin-point movement on Nanking today which appeared to doom Chiang Kai-Shek's capital to early capture—perhaps within a few days.

So urgent was the situation that the Chinese Nationalist government laid plans for swift evacuation, and the American embassy directed dependents to be ready to fly to Manila Thursday.

Shanghai Doomed

Shanghai, China's city best known to foreigners and one of the world's great ports, appeared doomed also. Loss of Nanking would mean capture of the great port and the Communist south-east within a matter of days or a few weeks at most, observers here said.

A Chinese official revealed that Nationalist planes and warships have been ordered to be ready to leave the Yangtze river and Shanghai harbor areas within 10 days for Formosa. All government departments were preparing to move to Formosa, some 800 miles to the south.

American military observers estimated only a few days ago that Nanking might be held as long as one or even two months. But the speed with which Communist forces were closing in on the city forced revision of this estimate.

Nationalist forces posted to guard the northern approaches to the capital appeared to have been outmaneuvered, if not outfought.

The so-called "great victory" in which Nationalist forces beat off the Communist thrust to Suichow, 100 miles northwest of Nanking, appeared to have been a tactical success, but it was not enough to prevent the Communist forces from advancing on Nanking.

Coast has had an opportunity to review results of a questionnaire circulated by the Chamber of Commerce.

Officials of the trade body, however, emphasized that the Chamber of Commerce is not bound by the T.C.A.'s interpretation of the questionnaire, and that the right to continue its application to the Board of Transport Commissioners if a satisfactory decision of the main line service to Vancouver is being obtained in a reasonable time.

Last week F. G. Winneper, president of Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, and H. A. Dye, K.C., its counsel, interviewed G. R. McGregor, president of Trans-Canada Airlines.

At that interview the Edmonton officials were given to understand that around May 1, or at the latest June 1, 1949, a third Trans-Canada flight will be inaugurated, making three North Stars operating on a Canada-Alaska route, instead of two as at present.

Providing the present survey be undertaken by the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce satisfies T.C.A. officials as to the possibilities and potentials in this area, the third flight will land in Edmonton.

This will give a flight through the third flight operating non-stop from Vancouver to Vancouver.

Following the conference at Winnipeg, Mr. Dye and Mr. McGregor went to Ottawa to further discuss the inauguration of the main line service through Edmonton.

Hon. James A. MacKinnon, member of parliament for Edmonton West, is actively advocating the acquisition of the through service.

Canada Nears Big Defence Alliance

Seven Powers to Consider Draft Proposal of Pact

By Douglas How

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—(CP)—Canada will shortly move a step nearer to a $200,000,000-a-year defence alliance that likely will have important effects on her internal policies.

At the ambassador level, spokesmen for the seven powers participating in the North Atlantic security alliance will meet in Washington, possibly this week, to consider a draft proposal of a pact that is being called the greatest defence alliance in history.

PREPARED IN LONDON

The draft was prepared in London by the five western allies, powers of Europe for submission to the United States and Canada. The Washington meeting will prepare for submission to formal treaty conference at cabinet level.

Canada's representative at the Washington meeting will be Ambassador Hume Wrong.

Meanwhile, a chief of embassies and government sources in Ottawa showed a wide disparity in comparable defence outlays by the countries involved virtually on the eve of a treaty that will probably be placed before the Canadian parliament at the session beginning in January. It showed that Canada is neither the heaviest spender—nor the lightest.

THE FIGURES

Here are figures with some loopholes because certain statistics were not available in Ottawa. From left to right they represent, in thousands, the expenditures on defence, population, net national income which is roughly the salaries, wages and corporation profits, and then the percentage of the total federal budgets represented by defence.

|                      | Defence      | Population | N.N.I.      | Percent |
|----------------------|--------------|------------|-------------|---------|
| U.S.                 | $15,000,000 | 140,000    | 202,500,000 | 37      |
| U.K.                 | 2,800,000    | 50,000     | 50,000,000  | 23      |
| France               | 2,000,000    | 40,000     | 28,000,000  | 20      |
| Canada               | 25,000       | 12,000     | 10,981,000  | 11.3    |
| Belgium              | 100,000      | 9,000      | 2,000,000   | 20      |
| N.A. (not available) | 100,000      | 8,500      | 4,500,000   | 8       |

Considered the plan, however, showed down a defence budget which gave authority for additional commitments of $100,000,000 which would make her percentage roughly 16 if the commitments are entirely used, as likely.

Israel Seeks Seat in UN

PARIS, Nov. 30.—(AP)—The Security Council today called a meeting for Thursday to consider Israel's application for membership in the United Nations.

In setting the date for the meeting the council acceded to an Israeli request for speedy consideration of the membership bid filed yesterday with the UN secretary.

But diplomats said it was not at all certain that the Jewish state would get the necessary seven votes for admission to the UN. Earlier today the United States and Great Britain got together on a UN resolution to keep the Arab part of Palestine to their "Arab part of Palestine."

Yielding to American insistence, Israel withdrew its demand that the UN should ally itself with the Jewish state, and the Jewish state was taken from the new Jewish state and the Arab part of Palestine.

But Russia promptly attacked the resolution proposed by Britain with U.S. support, Soviet delegate Semyon Tsarapkin asserting that the British were trying to give the Arab part of Palestine to their "Arab part of Palestine."

He insisted that the Arab state must become a separate state.

Scots Begin Celebration Of St. Andrew's Day

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Scots began their celebration of St. Andrew's Day today by celebrating the birth of St. Andrew the Apostle.

Arthur Woodburn, secretary of state for Scotland, said Scots all over the world would join with their homeland in observing the birthday of the patron saint of Scotland today.

Woodburn said the time when Scotland was a "depressed area" with one of 19 persons out of work and every third person a potential emigrant, "is in the past." Scotland's industry, its farming and fishing have grown so that only 30,000 of the country's 5,000,000 population were unemployed, Woodburn said.

UFA Co-Op Rolls Up Surplus of $140,000

CALGARY, Nov. 30.—(CP)—The United Farmers of Alberta Central Co-operative Association Ltd., rolled up a surplus of $140,000 on total sales of all commodities during the year ended July 31, 1948, according to annual reports filed by the secretary today at the opening session of the UFA annual convention.

Reports also showed that total sales amounted to $1,867,800 for the year.

Several hundred delegates and visitors from all parts of Alberta were present, when George E. Church of Balzac, Alta., president of the 40-year-old farmer organization, presented his annual report.

During the course of his address, Mr. Church said this may be the last time that the presently constituted UFA would meet as such because of the impending amalgamation with the Alberta Farmers Union.

CO-OPS SEPARATE

He said that in the event of the merger being completed shortly, arrangements had been made to continue the UFA co-operative enterprises as a separate organization.

Mr. Church said that the two most important matters to be considered by the convention would be the severance and the new setup of the UFA co-operative and the amalgamation with the Alberta Farmers Union. Amalgamation is planned in an effort to present a united front on agricultural matters within Alberta.

The proposal was to remove the co-operatives from the educational and social aspects of the UFA as presently constituted. They would be placed upon an independent and self-governing basis.

In connection with the proposed amalgamation with the Alberta Farmers Union, Mr. Church gave a detailed report of the negotiations which had been conducted today by the special committee.

NOT EASY MATTER

"I have found that it is one thing to raise one's hand in a proof of the idea (amalgamation), but a vastly different thing to carry that idea into effect," the president said.

"We are deeply conscious, however, in these disturbed post-war years of the need for the utmost effort toward unity... any attempt to impair the complete freedom of action of the new organization, either by including in the constitution the adherence to certain economic doctrines or alliance with other economic groups will meet with determined resistance."

A strong farm organization led by sincere and thoughtful men and commanding the confidence of the mass of the farm can do a great deal in shaping the manner of life which will prevail on the prairie."

The annual report of the board of directors proposed that the UFA's educational function be carried on by a non-incorporated association on an annual membership basis under the name of United Farmers of Alberta.

Directors also suggested that the co-operatives contribute to the educational organization by a capital grant, as well as by annual grants.

Directors reported that membership up to Nov. 15 showed a full paid-up membership of 10,387 and that the financial statement at the same date showed a deficit of $117.

FREDERICTON, Nov. 30.—(CP)—With the hunting season in most parts of New Brunswick ending today, a survey showed that five lives had been lost and live other animals suffered injuries since the season opened Oct. 1.

Contributory Pensions

If the federal government decides to introduce a contributory old age pensions plan of adequate extent at the next session of parliament it will have made its greatest advance in social service.

Present old age pensions are both unsatisfactory and inequitable.

They are unsatisfactory because they do not provide a sufficient amount to keep old people alive and because they do not begin at an early enough age.

The latest offer of the federal government was to pay the cost of a $20 a month pension to persons 70 and over and with the provinces the cost of pensions to persons between 65 and 69.

Some provinces have added to this sum from their own treasuries. Alberta, for instance, pays a total pension of $37 per month.

But this is far from sufficient to support an aged man or woman. Moreover the pension now begins at 70, whereas the unemployable age usually begins at 60 or 65.

There is obviously, then, an incongruous spread between the age at which a person can secure work and the age at which he can secure the pension.

Spread Out the Bus Loads

Officials of the Edmonton transit system make a reasonable request when they ask Edmonton people to co-operate in spreading the bus loads over the entire operating day.

For instance, there is no hardship imposed on shoppers when they are requested to get home before the buses begin to be filled with shop and office workers.

Edmonton buses have seating accommodation for 170,000 persons a day or a full standing capacity of 200,000 passengers. But the average number of passengers

Buy TB Christmas Seals

The Alberta Tuberculosis Association has no source of revenue other than the annual sale of Christmas Seals.

The work of this organization is so valuable in the fight against tuberculosis that well-disposed persons will buy these seals freely this season in order that it may be carried on without hindrance.

Tuberculosis still kills 15 Canadians every day.

And yet its present incidence is small beside what it was at the turn of the century. At that time the disease stood first among killers. Now it is in seventh place. Deaths from tuberculosis have been reduced by more than 80 per cent in the past 50 years.

The agencies and the methods that have reduced this appalling death rate and will reduce it still more, with public help, are the agencies similar to the Alberta Tuberculosis Association and the methods similar to those employed by that association.

It is axiomatic, for instance, that early

Present old age pensions are inequitable because the provision of the means test impels applicants to pauperize themselves before they can receive the allowance. Pensioners are denied the right to take odd jobs to add to their meagre income.

Now the chief difficulty in increasing the present pension to a tolerable level is that any substantial increase would impose a tremendous burden on the taxpayer.

In Canada at the present time are 960,091 persons of 70 and over, 1,267,815 of 65 and over and 1,674,966 of 60 or over.

It is clear, then, that adequate pensions paid out of national capital to this many people would involve a serious drain on the national treasury.

But a contributory system would make the load lighter. It would not only reduce the capital expenditure but would permit the cost to be placed on an actuarial basis.

Lifetime contributions by everyone to an old age pension of substantial extent are fully in keeping with democratic theory.

It is the only sensible and just method of dealing with an impelling national obligation.

gers carried is only 110,000 a day.

It is obvious, then, that the whole problem is one of distributing the load.

Transit system officials say that a good deal of time could be saved if passengers would use the centre doors when leaving the buses.

Instead of making an appeal, the transit system should issue an order.

The compulsory use of the centre doors as exits would not only expedite loading, but would tend to move passengers to the back of the buses and thus increase the standing capacity of the vehicles.

diagnosis is essential to successful treatment of the disease. The Tuberculosis Association has assisted materially in the government's diagnostic program through which some half million Albertans have been X-rayed and more than 500 unsuspected cases of the disease discovered.

The addition to co-operation in this important diagnostic work, the association conducts an extensive educational campaign, by means of the press, radio, films and speakers, to acquaint the public with the dangers of tuberculosis and the best means of avoiding it.

The association has also established scholarships for post-graduate medical training and maintains full-time nurses for the tuberculosis clinics at Edmonton and Calgary.

All this constitutes a magnificent public service, paid for by the public's purchase of Christmas Seals.

The appeal for the sale of these seals is sponsored in Edmonton by the Kinsmen Club.

Pursuing Fight Had Advantages End of European War Hastened By Battles in Fall of 1944

This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It features the highlights of the book published on Nov. 22, 1948, by Doubleday and Company. Copyrighted by Doubleday and Company. The serialization is in 30 chapters, which will appear daily in the Bulletin. —EDITOR.

CHAPTER XIX

Our ground forces, while not yet at peak strength, continued constantly to increase. On August 1 our divisional strength on the Continent was 35, with four American and two British divisions in the United Kingdom. By October 1 our aggregate strength on the Continent, including the Sixth Army Group, which had advanced through the south of France, was 54 divisions, with six still staging through the United Kingdom.

In view of all these conditions there was much to be said for an early assumption of the offensive in order to conserve all our strength for building up the logistic system and to avoid the suffering of a winter campaign. I declined to accept such a course, and the principal commanders agreed with me that it was to our advantage to push the fighting.

BEST POLICY
We were certain that by continuing an unrelenting drive we would, in spite of hardship and privation, gain additional advantages over the enemy. And we were convinced that this policy would result in shorter, less costly and therefore in the saving of thousands of Allied lives.

Consequently the fall of 1944 was to become a memorable one because of a series of battles, the most tested battles, usually conducted under the most trying conditions of weather and terrain. Walcheren Island, Aachen, the Hurtgen Forest, the Roer dams, the Siegfried Line, and the Vosges Mountains were all to give their names during the last months of 1944 to the sum of their results, greatly hastening the end of the war in Europe.

Capture of the approaches to Antwerp was a difficult operation. The Scheldt Estuary was heavily mined and the German forces on Walcheren Island completely dominated the water routes leading to the city. It was not until the end of the year that we had not been successful in capturing the area during our greatest reach in the early days of September.

Final German resistance on Walcheren Island was eliminated on November 8, 1944. Some 10,000 enemy troops had been captured, including a division commander. The capture was high. For the entire series of operations in the area our allies, almost entirely Canadian and British, numbered 20,000 in the capture of Sicily, where we defeated a garrison of 300,000.

V-2s CAUSED DAMAGE
The first ships to begin unloading in Antwerp arrived on November 10. The Germans had begun launching V-1 and V-2 rockets against the city in late October. While the bombs were frequently erratic, as has been in London, the V-2s caused considerable damage in the district. Numbers of German soldiers were killed and communications and supply routes were interrupted, although usually only for brief periods.

The enemy also employed large numbers of E-boats (a small, armed type of submarine) and they submarines to interfere with our use of Antwerp. These weapons were countered by energetic naval and air action, in spite of all difficulties. Antwerp quickly became the northern hub of our entire logistic system.

Immediately south of the British area Bradley, our 12th Army, brought into line the U.S. Third Army under General Simpson. On November 16, Bradley ordered his offensive toward the Rhine in the northern part of the attack was carried out by the First and First Army and was preceded by a heavy bombing of the enemy and by artillery bombardment.

These attacks initially employed fourteen divisions, and the number was soon increased to seventeen. Nevertheless, progress was slow and the fighting intense. On the right flank, the scene of one of the most bitterly contested battles of the entire campaign.

Meanwhile, south of the Ardennes Forest, the Third Army launched an attack on November 18. Its offensive was aimed generally at the Saar region, the most important industrial region of the enemy and by artillery bombardment.

The fighting throughout the front, from Switzerland to the mouth of the Rhine, descended during the last fall into a series of bitter and bloody battles. The most difficult kind of infantry fighting. Advances were slow and the casualties were ordinarily measured in terms of yards rather than miles. Operations became mainly a series of artillery and ammunition and, on the part of the infantry, endurance, stamina and courage.

MADE CONSIDERATION
Our reason for considering the air force as the main factor in the bridges was based upon considerations of priority and effectiveness. To destroy merely a few was of little use. A span of twenty-two miles, it was reported, was at that time, totaled the river, some twenty of them would have been rendered useless or the effort would be only partially effective.

One of the greatest of these other purposes was to deplete Germany's reserve of fuel oil. By this time the enemy was depending upon this vital item of supply. The orders to the heavy bombers to attack the oil refineries and distribution system in the limit of their ability. This type of report, however, is tactic had great effect not only generally upon the entire war power of Germany but also directly upon the front.

Through late November and early December the badly stretched condition of our troops caused considerable concern, particularly on Bradley's front. In order to maintain the offensive and to avoid the danger of a counter-attack, it was imperative that we had to concentrate available forces in the vicinity of the Roer dams on the north and bordering the Saar on the south. This weakened the status, or protective force, in the Ardennes region.

The responsibility for maintaining only four divisions on the Ardennes front and for running the risk of a large German penetration in that area was mine. At any moment from November 10 onward I could have passed to the defensive along the whole front, and made our lines absolutely secure from attack while we waited reinforcements. The German Staff calculated that destruction of the bulk of the bridges would require vastly more time and bomb tonnage than we could afford to divert from other operations within the whole country.

PANZER STRONGEST
The German Staff Panzer Army, which had appeared on our front, was the strongest and most efficient mobile reserve remaining to the enemy within the whole country. At that time some intelligence reports indicated a growing anxiety about our weakness in the Ardennes, where we knew that the enemy was impressing infantry formations. Previously he had, like ourselves, been using that portion of the front in which to rest tired divisions.

This type of report, however, is

PRECEDENT WAS CREATED in Montreal when for first time a nun was guest speaker at a service club. Sister Marie de L'Eucharistie of the Order of the Poor Clairs of Jerusalem, who took a vow of silence more than 10 years ago, was permitted to make trip to Montreal from Palestine and address Richelieu Club by special dispensation from the Vatican. She told of tribulations of Roman Catholic organizations such as hers since beginning of war in 1939. —CP Photo

Fog Still Hangs Over Britain

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(HUP)—The worst fog since the Christmas season of 1944 blanketed Britain and the European continent today, tying up air, ship and railroad traffic for the fourth straight day. All planes of the Berlin airlift, upon which 2,500,000 persons in the western sectors of the German capital depend for food and supplies, were grounded.

Once again the scheduled sailing of the world's greatest liner, the $5,000,000 Cunarder Queen Elizabeth, was cancelled. The vessel now has been tied up at Southampton for 13 days, first because of the U.S. east coast liner's strike, and for the last three days by fog.

Over 1,000 passengers resigned themselves to another day in port, and Cunard officials reportedly scheduled a new attempt to sail tomorrow morning. Her sister ship, the Queen Mary, also was scheduled to sail tomorrow.

The British airways reported that the thick white fog blanket had lasted for hours at this morning, the longest continuous fog since the holiday season of 1944 and the longest since the war, dropping below freezing in London and the southeast of England, disintegrated the fog.

Conroy Says LPP Is Fifth Column

DRUMHELLER, Nov. 30.—(CP)—Pat Conroy, secretary of the Canadian Congress of Labor, told a "fourth column" meeting Sunday that the Labor Progressive Party "is a fifth column in this country serving the interests of the Soviet foreign office."

He said the CCL and the United Mine Workers of America are determined to clean out Communists from their ranks.

His speech was continually interrupted by pro-Communist hecklers.

CBS WINS BENNY DEAL

Battle of Networks Rages Behind Scenes

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP)—The battle of the networks—CBS vs. NBC—was reported today still being behind the scenes despite a CBS victory in the Jack Benny deal.

The transaction which will take Comedian Benny from NBC to CBS Jan. 2 was understood to include his Amusement Enterprises, Inc., which has the personal management contracts of Phil Harris, Alice Faye and others.

There was speculation that the Harris-Faye show, which now follows Benny on NBC, might also switch to CBS if program complications could be ironed out, and that Dennis Day's Saturday night show on NBC also might swap networks.

Another top NBC Sunday night show, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, also was reported on the verge of switching to CBS with its change of programs scheduled around year-end.

There still was no clarification of whether Benny's switch of networks was a capital gains transaction involving lifetime sale of his services and his amusement enterprises as a business. Such a deal would make the lump sum payment subject only to a 25-per cent capital-gains tax instead of the much higher personal income tax Benny now has to pay on his income from his $25,000 a week show.

CBS replied with a terse "no comment" when asked whether the Benny deal, announced Friday, was a capital gains transaction. But NBC President Niles Trammell implied strongly that it was in commenting that his

Nfd. Likely Join Next Week

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—(CP)—Signing of the terms under which Newfoundland will join Canada as a 10th province likely will take place some time next week.

Representatives of the two countries held two meetings behind closed doors Monday to continue study of a draft of the union terms. No announcement was made.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told newspaper men that "we are studying the details of the terms and it is quite lengthy."

From other sources it was learned that the delegations are making a thorough examination of a 12-page foiled document which contains the detailed terms. The document will form part of the bill to be submitted to parliament for approval.
